Justice Department,

When I think of justice, the Microsoft case does not come to mind as a shining example. When market competators are able to drag their rivals into court for giving away a product, it is a sad day for the cause of justice in America.

Microsoft has and is the victim of the worst evil in the world: Envy. Envy that Microsoft is able to produce the most desirable & affordable products in the software markets. Envy that they are able to make available many products for free.

America is supposed to be a country where citizens are free to make choices. But the choices should not include plundering the wealth of its most productive men & women.

I ask you to please release Microsoft from this 21st century witch hunt. The witch that the previous administration wanted to burn was a hagar that conjured spells for all our personal and business computers, spells that were time-savers and lefe-enhancers.

During the Inquisition, witch-hunters tourted its victims until they pleaded for their lives. The Inquisitors of today on Capitol Hill use the scripture of the wretched Anti-Trust law. With this "law" anyone and everyone can be convicted of practicing the majic of Capitolism, just as the inquisitor's tourture always gained a gruesome confession just before the execution of the victim.

The victim today is Microsoft. It has been tourted enough.
